Emotionally Focused Therapy

Emotionally Focused Therapy (EFT) is een vorm van relatietherapie, ontworpen door Sue Johnson. De therapie is werkzaam voor paren die verwijdering ervaren of vastlopen in een patroon van conflicten. Partners kunnen verstrikt raken in een patroon van negatieve reacties, die het gevoel van verbondenheid en veiligheid aantasten.

EFT helpt paren zich bewust te worden van de gevoelens en verlangens die onder dit patroon liggen, zodat dit doorbroken kan worden. De onderlinge verbondenheid wordt vergroot, zowel in de basis van de relatie als in het dagelijks leven. Partners leren om ruzies of vernietigende dialozen om te buigen naar gesprekken waar men steun kan vragen en bieden.

Onderzoek heeft uitgewezen dat EFT geschikt is voor paren van verschillende geaardheid, culturele achtergrond, in verschillende levensfasen en ook bij paren die te maken hebben met verlies, depressie en trauma. In de EFT komen diverse perspectieven bij elkaar: de hechtingstheorie, het systemische of interpersoonlijke perspectief en het experiëntiële of intra-persoonlijke perspectief.

Uit wetenschappelijk onderzoek naar EFT blijkt dat:

EFT een sterk positief effect op de verbondenheid in een partnerrelatie heeft; de stabiliteit van de resultaten sterk is (er is heel weinig terugval); EFT effectief is bij diverse paren, ook bij psychische of lichamelijke klachten; EFT beter werkt dan andere relatie behandelmethodes.

In de bijlage vindt u een samenvatting van de lijst van onderzoeken en commentaren en onderzoek van Emotionally Focused Therapy research. (update augustus 2017)

Doel, werkwijze en eindtermen van de basistraining EFT

Het grondig kennismaken met de beginselen van het EFT model en het begrijpen van complexe partnerrelatieproblematiek in het licht van de hechtingstheorie. Het kennisnemen van de interventies en de methodiek in het model, en aan het einde van de cursus methodisch kunnen werken met echtparen binnen het model.

Werkwijze en didactische werkvormen.

Zowel in de basistraining komen onderstaande werkvormen aan bod:

- Iedere cursusdag staat een stap van het therapieproces centraal, zodat na 4 dagen alle stappen in het EFT proces zijn uitgewerkt en verdiept.
- Literatuurbespreking; inleidingen, er zijn enkele PowerPointpresentaties.
- Inoefenen van nieuwe werkwijzen middels rollenspelen
- Bestuderen van Engels- en Nederlandstalig video-instructie materiaal, er wordt gebruik gemaakt van opnames van sessies door (Nederlandstalige) EFT trainers.
- Bijwonen van een live sessie, met de deelnemersgroep wordt deze nabesproken
- Inbrengen en bespreken van cursusmateriaal
Door (zelf)observatie oefeningen wordt van de cursist gevraagd te reflecteren over zijn/haar werk, attitude en zienswijze.

De basistraining EFT is ontwikkeld voor professionals in de geestelijke gezondheidszorg.

Inspanningen die verwacht wordt van de deelnemers in basistraining

- Cursisten bereiden de cursusdagen voor door evt. opgegeven literatuur te bestuderen.
- De cursist heeft in zijn/haar praktijk de mogelijkheid om partnerrelatie therapie te geven. Recent opgedane praktijkervaringen worden als cursusmateriaal ingebracht

EFT Research (update june 2017)

Following the short summary is a list of studies and commentaries on Emotionally Focused Therapy research.

Short Summary of EFT Research

Question: Does EFT conform to any “Gold” standard in terms of research validation and the standards set out for psychotherapy?

In terms of the gold standard set out by bodies such as APA for psychotherapy research, EFT epitomizes the very highest level set out by this standard. Over the last 30 years, the EFT research program has systematically covered all the factors set out in optimal models of psychotherapy research.

The meta-analysis (Johnson et al, 1999) of the four most rigorous outcome studies conducted before the year 2000, showed a larger effect size (1.3) than any other couple intervention has achieved to date. Studies consistently show excellent follow-up results, and some studies show that significant progress continues after therapy. EFT has a body of process research showing that change does indeed occur in the way that the theory suggests. This level of linkage between in-session process and rigorous outcome measurement is unusual in the field of psychotherapy.

EFT is the only model of couple intervention that uses a systematic empirically validated theory of adult bonding as the basis for understanding and alleviating relationship problems. The generalizability of EFT across different kinds of clients and couples facing co-morbidities such as depression and PTSD has been examined and results are consistently positive. Outcome and process research addressing key relationship factors, such as the forgiveness of injuries, has also been conducted with positive results. EFT studies are generally rigorous and published in the best peer reviewed journals.

In brief, EFT researchers can show that, as set out in the Johnson 2004 seminal text, Creating Connection: The Practice of Emotionally Focused Couple Therapy, EFT works very well, results last, we know HOW it works so we can train therapists to intervene efficiently and we know it works across different populations and problems. It also links congruently to other bodies of research such as those examining the nature of relationship distress and adult attachment processes.

Recent research involves outcome studies of couples facing trauma and stressful events (the Dalton and MacIntosh studies, and a study on EFT effects on attachment security with an FMRI component.) The FMRI study shows that EFT changes the way contact with a partner mediates the effect of threat on the brain. A short video, Soothing the Threatened Brain, summarizing this study can be viewed on drsjohnson.com/videos. There is an outcome study in progress of the new educational program based on EFT (Hold Me Tight Program: Conversations for Connection). A pilot study has also been completed at the VA in Baltimore on EFT with veteran couples dealing with PTSD.

Completed and ongoing EFT research consistently supports the efficacy of the Emotionally Focused Therapy model.
